INTRODUCTORY.

The second issue of the WEST VIRGINIA STATE GAZETTEER AND BUSINESS DIRECTORY is now presented to the public. In addition to giving the names of all persons doing business in the State, a brief sketch of every city, town and village is contained herein; also a most complete classified directory of all businesses and professions, as well as other useful information and statistics, pertaining to the commercial and manufacturing interests of the State at large. A work of this kind necessarily involves a great amount of labor, and the expenditure of large sums of money, neither of which have been withheld, the aim of the publishers being to make it in every respect, creditable to themselves and worthy the confidence and support of the public.

The publishers desire to express their thanks to the business men of the State for the patronage and support accorded them. This book is larger, by more than a hundred pages, and is far more compactly printed than the previous Gazetteer, the conclusion being that the State has, within the last few years, made very rapid advancement. On this fact we congratulate the citizens. The outlook for the future is bright, and every thing indicates that the State has before it a career of success never before equalled.

Its present name was adopted about 1800. It is pleasantly situated on the banks of the Kanawha and Elk rivers at their junction, and is a well built city of 5,000 inhabitants. It is 60 miles by river from Point Pleasant (where the Kanawha river falls into the Ohio), and is on the C. & O. Ry, via which it is 369 miles west of Richmond, Va. The most important industries of the vicinity are those of mining, immense beds of iron ore, coal and salt, surrounding the city, and it is rapidly becoming a manufacturing centre. It has saw, flour and woolen mills, foundries, carriage and wagon works, cooperage works, etc., all of which are flourishing. Eleven churches and 3 good schools supply the religious and educational wants of the inhabitants, and there is an institute known as the Kanawha Military Institute, under the charge of Major Thos. F. Snyder. There are 2 banks, the Kanawha Valley and the State Bank, and the city has a bonded indebtedness of $40,000. KEYSER. The county seat of Mineral county, is a flourishing town of 2,000 inhabitants, located at the junction of New creek and the north branch of the Potomac, and is a station on the B. & O. R. R., via which it is 183 miles east of Parkersburgh, 215 west of Baltimore, Md., and 180 southeast of Wheeling. The machine shops and cattle yards of the R. R. Co. are the principal features of the place. It has large beds of coal of fine quality within five miles, and extensive forests of good timber surround the place, which, with the addition of its good transportation facilities, make it a favorable site for manufacturing enterprises. Iron ore is found in abundance, together with limestone. This combination of coal, lime and iron would make this a good place for blast furnaces, but the mineral wealth is, as yet, undeveloped; and live stock, lumber, grain, wool and some coal form the shipments. It has churches of the Methodists (North and South and Colored), Presbyterians and Catholics, and good graded school, with seven teachers and 500 pupils. It has no bonded debt. Some improvements have been recently made. Improved land in the vicinity is valued at $75 per acre. WEBSTER WAGON CO.

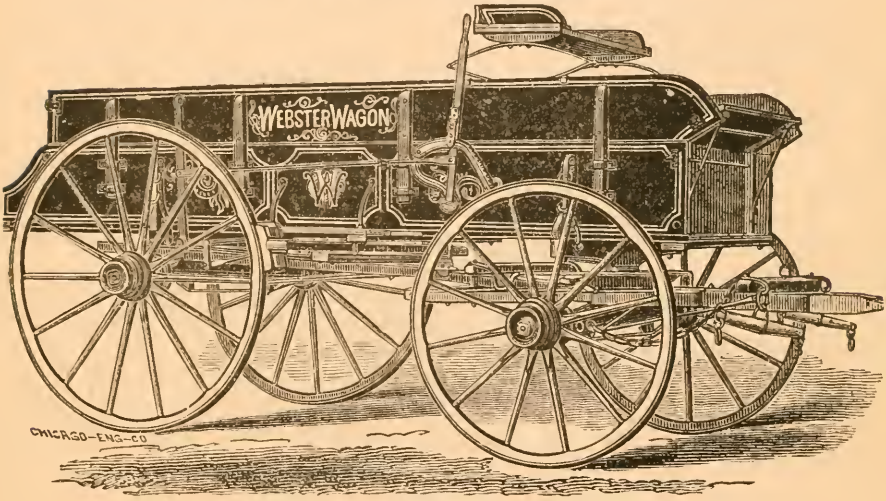
WAGONS

And LOG TRUCKS.

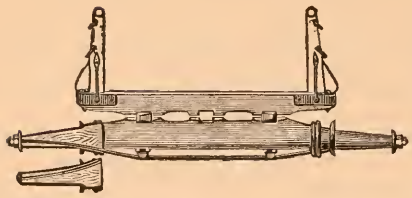


The Lightest Running and Best Wagon Made.

Our Wagons are built with our Patent TRUSS ROD Atttachment to the Axles. The greatest improvement ever applied to a Wagon, giving universal satisfaction.

☞ Read Description and Test on Other Side. ☜

THE TRUSS ROD AXLE ATTACHMENT.

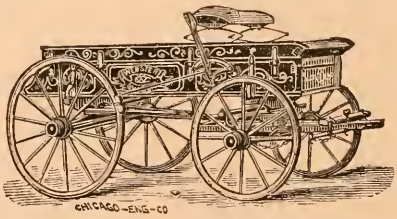


WE respectfully call your attention to THE MERITS of the TRUSS ROD AXLE ATTACHMENT, which we are using on our wagons with satisfactory results. The illustration will enable you to understand its construction. The Thimble Skeins are cast with a socket underneath the large end of the skein, to admit the Truss Rod, thus avoiding the necessity of cutting a groove in the arm of the wooden axle at the point where the large part of the skein and axle meet. Therefore it does not reduce the strength of wood at the weakest point of the axle.

The Truss Rod runs the entire length of the axle, from end to end, taking the place of the Skein Bolts, and is fastened by a small octagonal nut at the outer end of the skeins, and is so constructed that the wooden axle is supported by two small box trusses of cast iron, which are supported by the Truss Rod in the same manner as the railway passenger coach sills are supported by the Truss Rod running lengthwise under the coach.

We claim for the Truss Rod Axle Attachment that we have thoroughly tested it for several years in all the various climates—North, South, East and West—of the United States, and it has stood the test with perfect satisfaction to ourselves and those who have used it. We will give you ONE OF THE SPECIAL TESTS of the Truss Rod Wagons:

A VERY SEVERE TEST of the Truss Rod Axle Attachment was made at Kokomo, Indiana, by Messrs. Moore & Ellis, in August, 1879, in the presence of thousands of citizens of the town and vicinity. In a test with a wagon made by one of the largest manufacturers in the United States, a 3¼ inch Wagon with the Truss Rod Axle Attachment was made to carry eight tons of wheat for several hours, and was then loaded with over ELEVEN TONS and hauled quite a distance over a hard, rough road. After this terribly severe test the wagon was examined by a committee of disinterested persons, who pronounced it uninjured and as perfect as before the test; while the other wagon, on which they did not, nor dared not, put as much by several tons, was wrenched, strained and broken, so as to be comparatively worthless.



In conclusion we will state that the theoretical strength of a round bar of Lake Superior iron, five-eights of an inch in diameter (the size of the TRUSS ROD), requires the tension strain of 12,470 pounds to separate it or tear it asunder, before the axle can spring or break.

Late of New York, and cutter in some of the best houses in England and America, has located in Moundsville. He needs no recommendation—his work shows for itself, as also do his low prices. No need to pay high prices for ready-made clothing when you can have a custom suit made to fit you nice, or no trade. Imported goods always on hand; one price only, and that for cash. ☞ Cleaning and repairing neatly done. Suits from $18 to $35, or you can furnish your own goods and have it cut and made up. PARKERSBURGH. The county seat of Wood county, is situated on the east bank of the Ohio river, at the mouth of the Little Kanawha, 100 miles below Wheeling. It is the second city in the state, in population and business importance, having about 7,000 inhabitants, and is the seat of numerous manufactories. Situated on an elevated plateau, the city is above the reach of the Ohio floods; is in the great coal and oil producing section of the state, and is the western terminus of the Parkersburgh branch of the B. & O. R. R.; while the Marietta & Cincinnati R. R. and the Ohio river also afford good traffic facilities, which will be increased by the construction of the Wheeling, Parkersburgh & Charleston Railway, now organized. Thirteen churches, four of them belonging to colored congregations, provide for the religious wants of the people, and 5 public schools (one colored), Roman Catholic parochial, and several private schools afford educational facilities. The shipments are very large, including an immense variety of manufactured articles and products of the neighborhood. The assessed valuation of the city is $3,200,000, the bonded indebtedness $140,500. The city has gas and water works; good fire department, 2 opera houses, a telephone exchange, and the construction of a street railway is now contemplated. Good sandstone quarries are worked in the vicinity. Three banks—the First National, Second National and the Parkersburgh National—with an aggregate capital of $456,000, do business; and the press is represented by three weekly newspapers—the Sentinel (dem.), Journal (rep.), and the W. V. Freeman—and a monthly paper, the Index, is also published. The city is well built, with many fine public buildings, churches, schools, private residences, etc., and a handsome suspension bridge spans the Ohio river at this point. Express, B. & O. Telegraph, W. U. Mail, daily. C. F. Scott, postmaster.

WEST WHEELING. A suburb of Wheeling, at which postoffice its mail is distributed.

WHEELING. The largest and most important city in the State, and the State Capital from 1875 until 1882, when it was removed to Charleston (its previous location), is advantageously situated on the Ohio river and on both banks of Wheeling creek, at its confluence with that stream. It was originally settled in 1769, and now possesses a population of at least 33,500, which is steadily increasing as the development of the various industries for which the city is famous, demands further supplies of skilled labor.

The city is located on an alluvial plain some three miles in extent, along the bank of the river, and is shut in on the eastern side by a range of hills containing almost inexhaustible supplies of excellent bituminous coal and other mineral wealth. It is 92 miles below Pittsburgh, Pa., 375 above Cincinnati, O., and 379 northwest of Baltimore, Md. Its transportation facilities in addition to the great advantages of the Ohio river—which is being gradually improved by an extensive series of works, undertaken by the United States government, the intention being to so deepen the channel by means of dams, etc., as to afford a uniform depth of at least six feet at all seasons of the year—are very good. It is the western terminus of the B. & O. main line, and of the W. P. & B. division of the same road; the C. & O. division crosses the Ohio at Bellaire, 3 miles below the city and connects at Benwood junction, with the main line; and the P., C. & St. L. Ry., which crosses the Ohio river at Steubenville, has a branch, the P., W. & K. division, extending to Wheeling. Wheeling is also connected with Bridgeport, O., a station on the C. & P. R. R. by means of bridges, crossing the river at this point.

MANUFACTURES.

The iron manufactures are the chief source of Wheeling's prosperity, the abundance of good coal enabling it to be most profitably wrought into various articles. The iron is smelted on the spot, and all cost of transportation for the raw material is avoided. The principal manufacture is cut nails, fully one-quarter of the production of the United States being made in Wheeling and its vicinity. In addition to this branch, pig, bar, sheet and rolled iron, railroad spikes, hinges, etc., are made in large quantities, and the other manufactures embrace foundries, engine and machine shops, boiler works, wagon and carriage shops, glass works, planing, saw, flour and paper mills, brick yards, breweries, tanneries, potteries, saddles and harness, soap works, etc., in almost innumerable variety. The cheapness of the fuel and transportation make almost any branch of industry profitable.

The public buildings of Wheeling comprise the Capitol building, erected in 1876, at a cost of $120,000, and appropriated to the use of the State, as long as Wheeling remained the Capital. This has now reverted to the city. It has also a good Opera House, seating 900 people, and the Washington Hall, or Academy of Music, seating 1,100, and handsomely fitted up with all necessary appliances. The Wheeling Hospital and Orphan Asylum is an extensive structure, and is under the charge of the Sisters of St. Joseph.

The city is well supplied with churches, no less than 32 different buildings, some of them handsome edifices, being devoted to the purposes of the different denominations. Of these, ten are Methodist (two of them colored congregations), five Presbyterian, three Lutheran, two Episcopal, three German Reformed, four Catholic, two Baptist, one Disciples and one Synagogue. The educational advantages are great, there being eight graded public schools (one colored), and ten Catholic parochial schools, and numerous private [illegible] colleges and academies of various grades. The secret and benevolent societies are well represented, as in addition to the Masonic, I. O. O. F., K. of P., A. O. U. W., I. O. R. M., there are numerous temperance, musical, literary and benefit societies, lodges and associations in existence.

The newspapers published in Wheeling are three daily; the Intelligencer, the Register, and the Evening Leader. The Intelligencer is also published as a semi-weekly and a weekly paper; the Register as a tri-weekly and weekly, and the Leader as a weekly. The other weekly papers are the News-Letter, the Zeitung Von West Virginien and the Saturday Evening Journal; while the Wheelinger Volksblatt, is published twice a week.

Wheeling has all the modern requirements of a first-class city in full operation, having an excellent and complete system of street railways, gas works, good water supply from the Ohio river; an efficient police force, telephone service, etc. Express, Adams and B. & O. R. R. Telegraph, Western Union. Mail, daily. Hugh Sterling, postmaster.
